

This statement is made on behalf of Moyses Stevens Flowers Limited and its affiliated undertakings pursuant to section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 (MSA).

Founded in 2012, Moyses Stevens Flowers Ltd, today manages a collection of shops, a portfolio of corporate clients, as well as a large flower delivery service on-line. Details of areas in which we do business are available on our website, as well as products on offer. This is the first statement prepared by us in relation to the MSA and relates to actions and activities during the financial year 1 February 2016 to 31 January 2017. In future years we aim to develop our work in this area.

Commitment

We are committed to ensuring that there is no slavery, servitude, forced or compulsory human labour, abuse of power over vulnerable individuals, human trafficking or any other form of exploitation as contemplated by the MSA (Modern Slavery) in any part of our business or in our supply chain. We welcome the transparency encouraged by the MSA and this statement sets out for the public, our clients, suppliers and employees, the steps that we are taking in this regard.

Our policies

At Moyses Stevens Flowers Ltd. we strive for transparent business operations and performance. We adhere to a high set of ethics and values that guide our governance procedures and daily management decisions.

To have a long term valuable impact on the social context, Moyses Stevens Flowers Ltd. recognizes that it must be a profitable business operating above and beyond existing ethical and legal standards. As an organization, Moyses Stevens Flowers Ltd. is committed to expanding its operations nationally in a sustainable manner for the benefit of its customers, its employees, and the wider communities and environments on which it impacts. The business takes a pro-active approach to its corporate responsibility, which is deeply rooted in its corporate strategy and business decisions.

For example, at the point of recruitment, appropriate checks in accordance with relevant laws are carried out on prospective employees and our HR team works closely with the relevant teams in the local territories to make sure that pay and conditions are appropriately managed. In accordance with our commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships, we intend to implement effective systems and controls to ensure Modern Slavery is not taking place in our supply chains. This will involve ensuring the effective communication and reinforcement of our relevant policies, which give a clear view of the values and principles that underpin all of our work and that we expect all persons involved in our business and supply chain to adhere to. These policies comprise our Anti-Slavery and Human Trafficking Policy (applicable and available to all of our agents, consultants, contractors, employees and temporary workers) and our Supplier Code of Conduct (applicable and available to all of our suppliers).

Supplier due diligence

Moyses Stevens Flowers Ltd. procures goods and services from suppliers across the world. The scope of our supply chain includes the following activities:

- Purchase of cut flowers
- Purchase of packaging products and florist supplies

We select our suppliers with care. In order to identify and mitigate the risk of Modern Slavery in our supply chain we undertake checks / due diligence in connection with Modern Slavery on existing suppliers and prospective suppliers on a risk assessed basis.

In respect of existing clients, the outcome of this due diligence allows us to take appropriate steps to manage any risk of Modern Slavery including reconsidering the continued relationship with those suppliers. In respect of prospective suppliers, the outcome of this due diligence informs our decision to include them in our supply chain and, if so, whether appropriate contractual protections are to be included in our agreements with those suppliers to manage any perceived risk of Modern Slavery.

Signed
