OUR STORY

The story of Moyses Stevens Flowers begins 143 years ago in London. A small, independent florist, we were making our first steps in a metropolis dominated by growers and sellers at the iconic Covent Garden Flower Market. Needless to say, the landscape of the capital was vastly different to the modern city we know today; in 1876, our original store on Berkeley Square played host to the daily sounds of cartwheels in the streets while an aging Queen Victoria was still resident at Buckingham Palace.

Since then, Moyses Stevens has risen to become an icon of British floristry with seven stores across London and a flagship Flower School at Battersea Power Station.

Established as London's leading luxury florist, we design bespoke wedding bouquets, buttonholes and arrangements for the most exclusive ceremonies across the capital. Bespoke, luxurious and exclusive; our exquisite flowers are sourced from Britain and across the globe; while the accumulated knowledge of almost 150 years of floristry serves both as a constant inspiration and motivation for our team.

Today, we invite you on a journey to discover the wonderful world of wedding flowers curated by Moyses Stevens.
